THE MORNING NEWS

WASHINGTON.

Guiteau's Last Hope.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Mr. Reed, Guiteau's counsel, maintains great mystery as to his future plans, but he reiterates his repeated assurances that Guiteau will escape. His course will, undoubtedly, be to seek in some way to secure from the United States Supreme Court a writ of habeas corpus, but the court has adjourned until October, and one justice would hardly venture in chambers under the circumstances to grant a writ. He will, therefore, probably apply to some one justice and get a certificate, on the ground of the want of jurisdiction set up in the petition which he will present, that there is prima facie reason to hear an argument as to the granting of the writ of habeas corpus. With such a certificate from any justice of the United States Supreme Court, Mr. Reed, with some reason, might apply to the President for a respite for Guiteau until the argument could be heard by the Supreme Court at the October term.

The Position of the Democrats.

The tedious filibustering was renewed in the House this morning. The Democrats still fail to have the courage of their convictions, and are unwilling to submit to a discussion of the charges of forged evidence which they make. The Republicans are quite ready to meet and refute these charges if the Democrats simply assume the rôle of obstructionists, in which they are experts. Mr. Randall is at his post, as he was in the Civil Rights contest, and talks as loudly of continuing his resistance to the regular order of procedure. It is known that the Southern Democrats have become alarmed at the course of Chalmers, and at the progress of the independent movement in the South, and insist that this resolute stand must be made against the admission of Muckey. That is the real philosophy of the Democratic position.

Lieutenant Flipper's Case.

The case of Lieutenant Flipper, the colored officer recently tried by court-martial in Texas, is now before the President for action. The case has been in the hands of the Secretary of War for several months. Flipper is still under arrest in Texas, and is represented to be suffering great hardships in consequence.

The Garfield Memorial Church.

Ground was broken today for the commencement of the erection of the Garfield Memorial Church, on the site of the old frame church which has been removed. The ceremonies were very simple. The four-year-old daughter of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Power, turned the first spadeful of earth and then a few members of the congregation turned a sod or two after which they made way for the regular workmen.

Mr. Stephens and the Georgia Governorship.

A Star reporter had an interview with Hon. Alex. H. Stevens today in which the latter said that he had written a letter to the effect that he would not consent to run for Governor of Georgia as an Independent, but would accept the straight Democratic nomination. Telegrams contrary to this have been sent without authority.

Notes.

Miss Emma M. Gillett, appointed by President Garfield as a notary in this city, stands at the head of the law class, composed of both sexes, in the final examination of the students at Harvard University.

Several Indian delegations who have been here for weeks, not knowing exactly what they want, have been ordered home by the Secretary of the Interior.

FOREIGN.

The Repression Bill.

LONDON, May 23.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, Mr. Gladstone moved that the various stages of the repression bill and the adjourned debate on the arrears of rent bill have precedence over all other business until the House shall otherwise order. Mr. John Dillon, member for Tipperary and Mr. Justin McCarthy, member for county Longford, opposed the motion because precedence would only apply to one stage of the arrears bill. Mr. Gladstone's motion was carried.

The Claims of Arabi Bey.

LONDON, May 23.—An interview has taken place between Arabi Bey and the French Consul, in connection with the efforts to induce Arabi Bey and the rebellious army officers to leave, but the effort was without result. Arabi Bey maintained the country was with him, in favor of determined resistance. The consul replied that Arabi Bey was ill-informed, as the chamber of notables were almost unanimously against him.

A Russian Village Burned.

PARIS, May 23.—The papers publish a telegram stating that Smorgoni, between Wilna and Minsk, has been destroyed by fire. The despatch reports that the populace burned children and property saved in the Jewish cemetery.

M. Say Remains in the French Cabinet.

PARIS, May 23.—The Chamber of Deputies today, by a vote of 302 to 36, adopted an order of the day expressing confidence in M. Leon Say, who will accordingly remain in office.

Jewish Refugees.

VIENNA, May 23.—The Presse said so tremendous was the crush of refugees in Brody yesterday who were applying for assistance to proceed to America, that a man was crushed to death. Three hundred fresh refugees are expected to arrive at Brody today.

Mr. Burke's Assassination.

LONDON, May 23.—The St. James Gazette says:—We hear on authority that we cannot disregard that Under Secretary Burke was followed for protection by a constable on the day of his assassination, but the constable just before the murder was lured away by a false report that a woman was being murdered.

Condensed Telegrams.

Base ball yesterday.—At Troy—Troy, 1; Boston, 8. At Chicago—Detroit, 3; Chicago, 1. At Cleveland—Cleveland, 5; Buffalo, 3. At Providence—Brown, 9; Yale, 8. At Princeton—Princeton, 19; Amherst, 4.

Reports are continually coming in of snow and frosts in the West and Northwest. Serious damage to crops, however, is nowhere apprehended.

The bark Huron, from Greenock, St. John, N. F., yesterday, rescued twelve of the crew of the German bark Vertas, abandoned at sea, April 25th, in a sinking condition.

Thomas O'Neil, of Springfield, Mass., a bridge repairer, was killed at Chester, Tuesday, while trying to board a moving freight train.

A boiler exploded Tuesday in Hanes & Perchis's flour mill at Williamsport, Warren county, Indiana, doing much damage to the building and killing the engineer, S. Heinspring.

The steamship Peruvian, which has been 26 days out, arrived in Quebec Tuesday night in tow of tug Rocket and steamer Acadian, from St. Pierre, Miquelon.

Yesterday at the afternoon session of the forty-fifth anniversary of the American and Foreign Bible Society, held in New York, the following officers were elected:—Ebenezer Morgan, president; Rev. F. A. Douglass and Rev. William Rollinson, secretaries, and Mr. Samuel P. White, treasurer.

The twenty-fourth annual general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America convenes in Monmouth, Ill., today. The chief topic of interest will be instrumental music in the church. Both parties claim to have a majority.

Yesterday morning the iron manufacturers met in Pittsburgh and ratified the action taked by the conference committee, in refusing to grant the advance asked by the amalgamated associations. Every manufacturer in the district was present, and all expressed their determination to close down on June 1st, rather than sign the scale as submitted by the iron workers.

The United States district attorney has sent notice to a number of New York tradesmen dealing in "plaques" which have in violation of the revised statutes imitations of gold and silver coins or treasury notes, and also to storekeepers who advertise on cards bearing an imitation of national bank notes, forbidding the practice. Many emigrants are swindled with these imitations, and the government officers are making a determined effort to break up such business.

THE PROPER TIME FOR WORK.

The habit of writing or reading late in the day and far into the night, says the Lancet, "for the sake of quiet," is one of the most mischievous to which a man of mind can addict himself. The feeling of tranquility which comes over the busy and active man about 10.30 or 11 o'clock ought not to be regarded as an incentive to work. It is, in fact, the effect of a lowering of vitality consequent to the exhaustion of the physical sense. Nature wants and calls for physiological rest. Instead of complying with her reasonable demand, the night-worker hails the "feeling" of mental quiescence, mistakes it for clearness and acuteness, and whips the jaded organism with a will until it goes on working. What is the result? Immediately, the accomplishment of a task fairly well, but not half so well as if it had been performed with the vigor of a refreshed brain working in health from proper sleep. Remotely, or later on, comes the penalty to be paid for unnatural exertion—that is, energy wrung from exhausted or weary nerve-centres under pressure. This penalty takes the form of "nervousness," perhaps sleeplessness, almost certainly some loss or depreciation of function in one or more of the great organs concerned in nutrition. To relieve these maladies—springing from this unexpected cause—the brain-worker very likely has recourse to the use of stimulants, possibly alcoholic, or it may be simply tea or coffee. The sequel needs not be followed. Night work during student life and in after years is the fruitful cause of much unexplained, though by no means inexplicable, suffering, for which it is difficult, if not impossible, to find a remedy. Surely morning is the time for work, when the whole body is rested, the brain relieved from its tension, and mind power at its best.

A Minneapolis despatch says:—"Bishop Foss is resting more quietly. He passed a restless night, being delirious much of the time. This morning the swelling of the parotid gland indicates diffused pyæmic poison. The pulse is less than 100, and temperature a trifle below normal. His physicians and friends are encouraged and hopeful."

Clear head and sweet, easy breathing, sweet breath, perfect smell, taste and hearing, no cough, no distress. These are conditions brought about in catarrh by the use of Sanford's Radical Cure. Complete treatment for $1.

Terrible itching and scaly humors, ulcers, sores and scrofulous swellings cured by the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally, and Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally. Ask about them at your druggists.

Piles! Piles!! Piles!! No One Need Suffer. A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams (an Indian remedy), called Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 years' standing. No one will suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. WILLIAMS'S INDIAN PILE OINTMENT absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice; gives instant relief, and is prepared ONLY FOR PILES, itching of the private parts and nothing else. Read what Hon. Judge Cossbury, of Cleveland, says: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. For sale by all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price, $1 per box. HENRY & CO., Cleveland O. John E. Groff, Agt., Newport, R. I. G. C. Goodwin & Co., Wholesale Agents, Boston, Mass. je14-eod&wk1

PERSONALS.

.....Dr. Schliemann expects to finish his work in the Troad by August.

.....General and Mrs. Grant will visit their old home in Galena next month.

.....Senator Bayard's eulogy on Daniel Webster at Dartmouth College will be delivered on June 28.

.....W. C. Brownell, for some time literary editor of the New York Nation, is now abroad, and will protract his stay for some time.

.....The British minister at Washington will give a dinner party to a number of gentlemen on Wednesday, the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth.

.....Mr. Medore B. Beaubein is of all men now living the first who saw Chicago. He was four years old in 1813, when his parents came to the site of the present city.

.....Among the contributors to the porcelain department of the Paris salon this year are three American ladies, namely, Miss Baker, Mrs. Robin, and Miss Dana.

.....It is said that the late James Vick, the Rochester seedsman, gave more than $10,000 yearly for charitable purposes. He gave $25,000 worth of seeds to the Kansas sufferers by the grasshopper plague.

.....President Arthur will be accompanied on Decoration day by Secretaries Folger and Lincoln, Attorney-General Brewster, Postmaster-General Howe, and General Grant, and will review the procession at Madison square.

.....George I., King of Greece, is perhaps the most unpopular monarch in Europe. He seldom visits any public assembly or institution, or manifests any interest in public affairs, but gives almost undivided attention to his farm horses. His subjects think that he regards Greece merely as a rented estate, out of which he is striving to make as much money as possible while his tenure lasts.

FARM AND GARDEN.

To the country gentleman there is probably no other branch of farm business that pays so well as the raising of hogs. For the last two years, the profit in pork-making has been nearly a hundred per cent. on the money invested. One of my neighbors last year paid $30 for a sow and pigs to which he fed 106 bushels of corn, valued at $95, besides the milk from a dairy of three cows. The second day of November the whole lot was sold for $206.41. The manure, he said, would mostly pay for the trouble of feeding. In breeding, it is much the best to use young stock. The sows should not be over two years old, as old sows are much more apt to destroy their pigs than young ones. In the fall and spring, there is usually a good demand for pigs, and they rarely sell for unremunerative prices. This spring, pigs when ready to wean were sold at $3 apiece.

Of all pure-bred hogs, especially for this section, it is generally conceded that the Berkshire has the preference, as being by far the easiest to keep; and they will mature at an early age, making very fine pork. I can keep two pigs of this breed where only one can be kept of the Poland-China stock. Pigs should be allowed to run with the sow for four or five weeks after farrowing; then they should be weaned, giving them plenty of milk, and they will do fully as well as if allowed to run with the sow for a longer period. As the pigs get older, it has been my custom to mix a little meal with their milk, thus keeping them improving all the while. April pigs thus fed can be made to dress 300 pounds by Christmas, and at a cost, at the present price of corn, not to exceed five cents per pound. Many a farmer makes a grand mistake in feeding his hogs on new corn in the fall. It has been clearly demonstrated that one bushel of old shelled corn, ground into meal, is worth as much as four bushels of new corn fed in the ear.

I cannot too strongly urge upon farmers the profit of keeping a breeding sow and raising their own pigs. I was told the other day by a friend, that last winter he bought a sow for $10, and in the spring he sold $24 worth of pigs, and in the fall the sow was killed and then weighed over 300 pounds—a clear profit of $15 over and above all cost of feeding. At what business can any one do better?

STARKEY, N. Y. S. C.

AGRICULTURAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Few farmers are aware how much has been done since colonial times to reduce the amount of human labor by improvements in agricultural implements. The manufacture of these has become a prominent industry, whereas in early times the simpler tools were made on the farms where they were to be used, or by the neighboring mechanic. Although statistics are dry reading, they are valuable as a test of progress, and especially on this subject. The census of 1850 showed the value of farming implements to have been only about $152,000,000, while in 1870 the amount was $337,000,000, a gain of $185,000,000 in twenty years. According to the last census over 2000 establishments were in operation for this class of manufactures, whose products for that year exceeded $50,000,000, a gain of $13,000,000 in twenty years. About 1200 patents are annually issued in this country for agricultural improvements.

Consequently the art of tillage has been almost revolutionized. Formerly manuring and planting were done by hand. Now, on larger farms, drills or sowers of some kind are in almost universal use. But improvements in twenty years for harvesting are much more striking, especially in the use of horse-rakes, mowers and reapers. The saving has in this way been immense. Take hay for example. With a scythe a fair average per hired man of mowing is less than an acre and a half per day. With a team of horses and modern mower the average is at least six times as large. But this gives a very inadequate idea of the gain, leaving out of sight the large relief to human muscle and strength. The success of hay and grain crops depends largely upon harvesting at the right time. If cut too early, which formerly had in part to be done, the crop is immature; if too late, there are deterioration and waste. Thus the area of cultivation has been largely increased and security of crops greatly improved. Then in preparing the product for market there has been a wonderful advance. The old flail in the hands of a stalwart man (not modern "stalwarts") would thrash out from eight to twelve bushels per day. This was followed by some in the use of horses for treading out the grain. Some forty years ago the threshing-machine came into general use, and has supplanted the earlier contrivances for threshing. Horse-power, in the West and in California, has also been superseded by steam. Every New England farmer knows the large saving accomplished by the threshing-machine. In California, where steam power was employed, the president of the California Agricultural Society reported that on his farm 99,318 bushels of grain were harvested, threshed, cleaned for the market, and stored in the granaries in thirty-six days, with an average of twenty-two hands, making an average of about fifty bushels per man per day.

Adding to these and like improvements, such as the hay-press, the facilities for getting the products to market, some idea may be formed of what an immense advantage the later generations of farmers have had over those of earlier days.

FASHION NOTES.

The fashion of wearing curls has been revived by the ladies of the hon-ton.

The Gainsborough hats, so long in popular favor, have lost their prestige entirely.

Ruches of ostrich feathers for the neck and sleeves are the most expensive wrinkle of the day.

Pale amber and cypress green are fashionably combined in French dinner toilets of satin and moire.

Velvet loops and large Alsatian bows of velvet will be much used to trim even summer bonnets of delicate straw.

Large Watteau fans are now painted in floral designs, matching those seen upon dress fabrics of foulard or sateen.

The large bunch of flowers, formerly worn at the waist, has ascended to the left shoulder, or it reposes under the chin.

Queen Victoria's servants wore crape ornaments continuously from the Prince Consort's death to Prince Leopold's wedding, and then took them off.

Soft Moorish caps, devoid of brim or even head band, made of the dress material, are worn with travelling costumes of cheviot, in mixed colors, or of silver gray.

Embroidered linen lawn handkerchiefs edged with lace are often worn around the neck, even for dressy occasions. Silk handkerchiefs are worn tied around the neck like a gypsy kerchief.

Rhine pebbles are in great favor. Dog collars and combs are the most effective arrangements, though lace pins in the form of crescents, stars, bars and arrows are much liked. Pins set with a single stone have quite superseded the convenient silver pins so long in vogue.

Our pretty little songsters are once more being cruelly sacrificed to fashion. Bonnets, made entirely of feathers, are all the rage. Parasols, made of layers of fine feathers, are among the expensive novelties; and half-shoes, composed of tiny peacocks' feathers, or fine brown-shaded plumage, are another freak of fashion.

Many slender ladies follow the fashion set by Sarah Bernhardt, and have their gloves reach nearly to the shoulder, pushing them down to the elbow and allowing the extra fulness to wrinkle over the arm. By some this is considered the height of style. There are many others, however, who dislike the fashion as heartily as when it was first introduced.

There is always a dainty prettiness in lace adorning. Net embroidered squares, having a scattered figure in pale eglantine pink, blue, gold, white, or cream, are edged with a scant gathered ruffle of white Oriental lace. The delicate simplicity expressed in soft lace combined with richly tinted satin flowers forms a style of dress embellishing that rarely fails to produce a becoming effect.

Dark colors and soft low tones prevail in carpets of all grades, from the royal Axminsters and Wiltons down to the inexpensive ingrains. Terra cotta, Pompeiian red, dark Japanese blue and golden brown are choice shades for the ground, and the olive, black, robin's-egg and ecru grounds are still used. Small figures in Oriental designs, many of which are copied literally from Eastern rugs, are the first choice.

Major B. W. Bellamy, who owned seventeen hundred slaves before the war, is now the master of a thousand negroes, who cultivate his farm of sixteen thousand acres near Quitman, Ga. They live in neat, white-washed cottages, and are provided with churches, schools, and if the local newspaper is not mistaken, with dance houses. Every dwelling has its garden, potato patch, and orchard, and every tenant is encouraged to save money, buy land, and develop his individuality. It is said that all the children over ten years of age can read and write. At the plantation houses, things are done in the old style. A reporter who recently dined with the planter writes that the principal dish was a gigantic chicken pie, and that the round of beef made the stout boy who set it on the table stagger.

Robert College, Geneva, N. Y., at the beginning of this year had $368,000 invested, and its expenses were more than paid by its receipts last year by $2,400. An effort will be made to erect an alumni hall to cost $50,000, where the library, containing 18,000 volumes, can be placed.

A way has been found for making old postal cards useful. Cut lengthwise into strips about an eighth of an inch wide they make excellent lamp-lighters which burn readily, do not throw off sparks and leave scarcely a trace of ashes.

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS AND THE NEWPORT JOURNAL.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 127 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news—local and general. The Journal is a large 36-column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer.

Notices of births, marriages and funerals 50 cents each.

Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week and are allowed twenty-five changes a year.

The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

The News has four steam presses and is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

Newport Daily News

WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1882.

It takes 140,000 tons of fish each year to supply the London market. One would think the British capital a city of fishmongers.

Ground was broken in Washington yesterday for the Garfield Memorial Christian Church. The services were simple but very impressive.

The prosecution in the Jennie Cramer case closed yesterday. The defence did not offer any opening speech but proceeded immediately with its testimony.

When Barnum's circus visited Patterson, N. J., this season, the prisoners in the county jail petitioned to be allowed to attend. Their modest request was declined with thanks.

The Penny Press, of New London, died Saturday night. It was a bright little evening paper, but there was no field for it in New London, and it died after a flickering existence of 135 days.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, declined to accept the nomination of the Independents for governor of that state, but he will take the regular Democratic nomination if that is offered to him.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of vegetable compound fame, has appeared before Judge Chonte at Salem to take the poor debtor's oath. We had observed a growing paleness on her features for some time past.

The Boston Post:—After carefully considering the matter in all its bearings, we have come to the conclusion that James Russell Lowell can do better as a poet in Massachusetts, than as United States Minister in London.

In Arkansas the leading newspapers "announce" candidates for public office for the reasonable price of ten dollars each. If the politicians about here would pay accordingly times would improve in the newspaper offices.

All the "interests" are to be represented on the tariff commission, but we hear no candidate named as the representative of the people. The whole movement is for the benefit of the few, while the laboring classes are to be left to look out for themselves.

It is well understood that the Republican bolt in Pennsylvania is largely under the auspices of James G. Blaine, who is after Don Cameron's scalp. This fact gives the independent and reform character of the movement a bad appearance. The fact that the Maine "boss" is opposed to "bossism" in the keystone state is amusing but not edifying.

The House committee of ways and means has decided to report adversely the bill appropriating $100,000 to aid in making further Arctic exploration, and detailing Master Lucien Young as commander of the expedition. That is about as sensible a report as we have heard lately from any committee. The country does not want to send out more of these expeditions at present.

The Senate Tuesday, by a vote of 26 to 22, reconsidered the vote by which the five per cent. land bill was passed on Friday last. The Geneva award bill was discussed at length and finally passed in the same shape as it passed the House, the vote standing 38 to 12. The bill now goes to the President. In the House the Democrats continued their filibustering to defer action on the Mackey-O'Connor contested election case during the entire session, an adjournment taking place at five o'clock.

President Arthur appears to be rather slow in appointing the two commissions which have been created by Congress. The bill establishing the anti-polygamy commission was passed and became a law two months ago, but we have not heard a single word from the President concerning the appointments. The suppression of polygamy was considered of the greatest importance and if it was ever necessary to appoint any commission to accomplish this end, the sooner it is done, the better will be the results.

The Independent Republican Convention in Pennsylvania will be held today. The announcement of Mr. Marshall's declination to serve on the regular Republican ticket meets with great approval among the Independents. The terms of Mr. Marshall's letter preclude the Independents from giving him a place on their tickets, and this fact causes no little disappointment. The ticket nominated today will not contain any name on the regular ticket. The Independents are well organized and the result of the break from the ranks of their party will be carefully watched and will have an important bearing on the Independent movement in other states.

The story is told of Rev. Robert Collyer, as if it were evidence of smartness if not ministerial dignity, that as the preacher was about to commence his lecture in the Church of the Messiah, New York, he said:—"I see P. T. Barnum sitting in a back pew of this church, and I invite him to come forward and take a seat in my family pew. Mr. Barnum always gives me a good seat in his circus and I want to give him as good a one in my church." The congregation smiled as the great showman responded by accepting the invitation.

At the adjournment of the House of Representatives yesterday the Republicans were still looking for a quorum. The number wanting was eight. The Democrats are evidently determined to filibuster and prevent a quorum as long as the contested election case is brought up, and the trouble will continue until the other side can get enough together to carry their points. Nobody knows when that will be as some of the Republicans are shirking as well as the Democrats. In the meantime the appropriation bills and other important matters are delayed.

The President and his cabinet held a long session Tuesday, which was devoted to the discussion of the tariff commission. The names of several persons were considered but no definite action was taken. It is understood that no person will be appointed until the list is complete, and all will be appointed together. Francis A. Walker, ex-superintendent of the census, Henry W. Oliver, of Pennsylvania, and John T. Hayes, of Massachusetts are thought to have the best chance of appointment. Either one of these gentlemen is well versed in the questions of the tariff, and would be an excellent appointment.

It is expected that the St. Gothard tunnel will be formally opened this month. This is the second great tunnel which has been cut through the Swiss mountains for facilitating railway communication between northern Europe and Italy. The Mont Cenis tunnel opened a direct line between France and Italy, and has been far more successful in every way than had been anticipated, and Germany was not long in seeing the advantage which France had gained, and freely aided the new scheme. The tunneling was begun nearly ten years ago, and is now completed. The length of the tunnel is 14,900 metres, and runs in a straight line.

TELEGRAPHIC WAR.

Telegraphic and newspaper circles are considerably agitated over the report that the Associated Press has transferred, or is about to transfer, its entire business from the Western Union to the Mutual Union Telegraph Company. The facts of the case, as nearly as can be learned, are these:—The Associated Press has for some time past used the wires of the Mutual Union Company in transacting its Washington business, and has also done business for the Mutual Union. The Western Union Company has therefore notified the Associated Press that unless this business was withdrawn from the Mutual Union, it would be charged full commercial rates on all its regular business over the Western Union wires. This warning having been disregarded, the Associated Press is said to have been formally notified that hereafter it would have to pay regular rates. This arrangement would nearly double the cost of using the Western Union wires to the Associated Press.

In the meantime the Mutual Union does not yet run its wires to more than one-tenth of the points reached by the Western Union, and the Associated Press, and there is where a serious difficulty comes in. If the change is made the new company will doubtless extend its wires with all possible despatch. While compelled to use the old line and pay full rates despatches will be sent in skeleton and cipher as far as possible to reduce expense.

OUR EXPECTED MILITARY GUESTS.

We find the following in the local columns of the New York Times:—The Seventh Regiment has abandoned its proposed excursion to Indianapolis, and is now contemplating a visit to Providence and Newport during the latter part of July or early in August. Nine of the ten companies reported adversely to the proposed Indianapolis trip, at a meeting of the board of officers Saturday evening. As they were known to favor an excursion of some character, the proposition to visit Providence and Newport was introduced, and nearly all of the officers voted in its favor. Capt. H. B. Steele, commanding Company B, had called a meeting of his command for last evening to take action in reference to the proposed Western trip. As the other companies had voted against it, however, Company B acted on the proposed trip to Providence and Newport. Forty members voted in favor of going to Newport but not to Providence; 18 were in favor of the motion, but were uncertain whether they would be able to accompany their command, and six were opposed to the project, owing to their inability to make the trip. Colonel Clark said he was in favor of taking the regiment to Providence and Newport, remaining two days in each place. He thought it would be better for the regiment to pay its way and not throw out any baits for invitations from any source.

The Red Star line from New York to Antwerp is becoming very popular, for the reason that it lands passengers directly upon the continent, and at a point from which all the important continental cities and resorts are easily reached. The steamers are exceptionally fine and built on the White Star pattern by the same builders; all their ships have gone out full this season. Antwerp is a very desirable city in which to land, especially if one wishes to visit Holland and Germany, and Paris is but six hours distant from Antwerp. Bartlett & Co., 115 State street, Boston, are the New England agents for the Red Star Company.

WEDDING BELLS.

Miss Maud Rives, daughter of Mr. Francis R. Rives, and sister of Mrs. David Ring, Jr., of this city, was married Monday afternoon at Grace Church, New York, to Mr. Walker Breese Smith, of the Union Coaching and Polo clubs. As over a thousand invitations to the church were issued the edifice was filled with a fashionable audience of well-known people. The floral decorations were simple but tasteful. On each side of the altar were arranged Latania, Corypsen and other variety of palms, orange trees and India rubber trees, all connected together with ivy vines and garlands of smilax, forming a bower of foliage, within which the ceremony took place. The ushers were Mr. Reginald Rives, brother of the bride; Mr. Stanley Dexter, Mr. Center Hitchcock and Dr. J. O. Green. They wore boutonnieres of white roses and forget-me-nots. The bridesmaids were Miss Constance Rives, sister of the bride; Miss Amelia Rives, cousin of the bride; Miss Edith Fish and Miss Gertrude Hoyt. They wore dresses of white satin, trimmed with duchesse lace and carried bouquets of Gloire de Paris, Baroness de Rothschild, Cornelia Cook and Jacqueminot roses. Count Elliott de Zbrowski acted as the groom's best man on the occasion. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Satterlee, of Calvary Church, on Madison avenue, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Potter, pastor of Grace Church. The bride was given away by her father.

The bride's dress was of rich cream white satin, very long train, cut round and trimmed at edge with pipings of white satin; on the front were flounces of point lace; square corsage, trimmed with point lace; the sides of the dress were looped up with sprays of orange blossoms. She wore a veil of point lace, caught back with orange blossoms; diamond ornaments. She carried a bouquet of white roses tied with a satin ribbon, and wore a bouquet of orange blossoms on her left shoulder. As the bridal party entered the church the organist performed the march from "Lohengrin" and at its departure the "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 8 Washington place, to which only relatives and intimate friends were invited. The house was tastefully decorated by Klunder with plants and flowers for the occasion. In the main hall were blooming plants, and the doors leading to the parlors were heavily draped with smilax. In the front parlor the corners were filled with palms and the mantels and fireplace were banked with Marechal Neil, Baroness de Rothschild and Gloire de Paris roses and maiden hair fern. In eight large stands stationed around the room were the spring flowers, comprising buttercups, lilacs, cowslips, daisies, mignonettes, forget-me-nots, apple blossoms and primroses. On either side of where the bride and groom stood to receive the congratulations of their friends was a large stand of Baroness de Rothschild roses, at the foot of which were trained vines of ivy and smilax. The main door entering the rear parlor was completely covered with ivy, the top being decorated with lilacs. On entering the rear parlor on either side were two large columns of Gloire de Paris, nephetos, Cornelia Cook and Jacqueminot roses, intertwined so as to represent them growing on the vine. The mantel was banked with Jacqueminot roses and lilies of the valley. The fireplace was filled with white hydrangea, and palms were placed in the corners of the room; the mirror was banked with lilies, and the windows filled with flowering plants. The dining-room was completely decorated with scarlet geraniums, buttercups, and English ivy. Among those present were Mrs. W. H. Smith, the mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webster, Mr. Fairman Rogers, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. David King, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy, Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock, Miss Catharine Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bowdin, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Kennochan, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Mr. Montague Ward, and others.

IMPORTANT LECTURE.

I wish to call the special attention of the teachers and scholars of the Sunday schools of our city to a lecture on "The Manners and Customs of the East," to be given at Odd Fellows' hall, on Thursday evening, June 1, by Mr. A. O. Van Lennep, now of New Jersey.

The lecturer is a native of Syria, and has spent many years in the East. His knowledge of Bible lands and Bible customs is full and accurate, and an hour spent with him will convey knowledge which could not be obtained in many hours of solitary study. He is moreover a Christian gentleman, who enjoys the confidence and esteem of some of the most distinguished Bible students of the country. I regret that absence from the city will prevent my hearing him again. But I commend the lecture as one well worth the attention of all who desire information on the subject of which it will treat.

WARREN RANDOLPH.

LEADER OF THE BAND.

To the Editor of the Daily News:—

Will you permit one who is personally an entire stranger to Professor McQuown to express a hope that he may be induced to accept the vacant leadership of the New Hampshire band? In addition to superior qualifications as a leader, Professor McQuown is a very capable musician, and an excellent violinist, and will be a valuable accession to our local talent.

PROFESSIONAL.

PORTSMOUTH.

Funeral services over the remains of Mr. Jacob Healy, who died at his residence in this town, last Thursday, in the 63d year of his age, were held according to the usages of the Society of Friends, at their meeting house, on Sunday.

TIVERTON.

Rev. W. H. Sturtevant and family were agreeably surprised on the evening of the 19th instant, by the reception of a May-basket, containing, among other good things, a roll of money from their "friends and well-wishers," amounting to $75, for which they render thanks to the donors.

The following is a copy of the resolution passed by the church, at the close of Mr. Sturtevant's labors in Tiverton:—"That the members of the Congregational Church of Tiverton, R. I., recommend the Rev. W. H. Sturtevant to other churches as a faithful preacher of the Gospel, and his Christian character to be consistent thorowith."

In his sermon of Sunday morning Henry Ward Beecher said:—"Early marriages are the salvation of young men, and if a young woman doesn't love you enough to go down and live humbly with you and help you to work your way up she doesn't love you—leave the torment to somebody else!"

TELEGRAM ECHOES FROM THE CLUBS.

NEWPORT A BLISSFUL RETREAT FROM COMMERCIAL LIFE.—HINTS FOR ENJOYING LIFE BY THE SEA.—A DOG CART WITH A TRIM LITTLE TIGER THE FIRST NECESSITY.—THE GREAT CENTER OF FASHION.

The last day or two of slight approaches to summer weather has given a fresh impetus to the preparations for the Newport summer season. Those stray followers of fashion who prefer to indulge in the same torpor of winter life in that pleasant resort are shaking off the lethargy of their hum-drum existence and preparing to welcome the coming guests who will soon arrive in crowds. Newport has had a strange history and may be cited as evidence to the fact that places as well as people often find out the true bent of their genius only late in life. She at length realized her destiny. She is henceforth to be the most blissful retreat from busy commercial life, of which two hundred years ago it was her hopeful ambition to be the very scene and centre, for her new quiet harbor once looked down, in prosperous pride and patronage, upon sister cities by the sea which have long since outstripped her in business importance.

Indeed the music of the far-sounding sea seems much more befitting than the Babel sounds of commerce; the gay yacht looks more at home in her waters than the weather-stained merchantman, and more in accordance with the gay villas and cottage nooks, which are peculiar to this city of elegant leisure. Neal, in his history (about 1715), says:—"It is deservedly esteemed the Paradise of New England, for the fruitfulness of the soil and the temperateness of the climate; for though it be not above sixty-five miles south of Boston, it is a coat warmer in winter." It was about 1848 that the social renaissance of Newport began, and it has since been gradually growing to its pre eminence among all the villes d'eau of the world. It boasts of no mineral waters more or less unpleasant, but healthful, to bring together crowds of dyspeptic travellers. The true charm of Newport is its brilliant concentration of the fashionable and educated life of American cities, and the coming season is to be the most brilliant, the most thoroughly perfect of all that have gone before. The whole place is to be made as bright as day at night by the use of electric lights, so that the seafaring man approaching the coast will wonder what palace of enchantment is unrolled before him.

The wandering foreigners who flock to our shores every summer just as so many of our own people are leaving them frequently put the question:

"I say, what sort of things do people do at Newport?" And the answer is given very simply:—

"We do everything worth mentioning. We pass our mornings in walking, riding, playing lawn tennis, paying visits to pretty women and making a little love en passant. Dinner parties, evening parties, and the Casino make up the sum of amusement later in the day: but while one is idling in Newport one is never idle. As the season is now so near at hand, and it is understood that, owing to the late prosperous condition of the country and its consequent crop of new fortunes, many new people unaccustomed to the regular habits of the place intend enjoying its charms, a few hints on the subject may not be amiss. They are culled from the flowers of rhetoric belonging to an old habitue of Newport. The first necessity, then, is to acquire a dog cart with a trim little tiger. This should be at your door at ten A. M. to to take you to market, club and Casino. Marketing at Newport is essential to good repasts, and in this pursuit you should never buy anything on display or visible to the eye. Always search in the hidden recesses of the ice boxes for the best birds, sweetbreads and other small comforts. Listen to no recommendations, but judge by one or two of the senses available in such matters, and having selected be careful that no rich swell afterward rifles your basket on the principle that exchange is no robbery. At eleven, a pretty equipage with a pair of ponies and still more carefully got up tiger should beat your door for your wife to drive to the Casino and pay visits.

Dinner is fixed by fashionable statute to be at half-past three o'clock or at eight; for at five, in your best attire, with toadune in a chapeau de luxe, behind a sparkling pair of bays, grandly conducted by a representative coachman, while two stately footmen ride behind you at a moderate pace, you roll up and down Bellevue avenue, gazing at the occupants of other equipments as if you had been born doing that sort of thing. Never drive on Sunday. Sullivan used to say that there were two kinds of Yankees—Yankee pure and simple and the d——d Yankee. Sunday driving at Newport is confined to the latter. Instead of this you must wear a black hat (this is absolute), and with your wife by your side stroll along the Cliffs by Ochre Point Pavilion until the great centre of fashion is reached—the end of the walk, where Boston and New York unite in paying weekly homage, and the nobs and swells shake hands in the most delightful salon in the world. If you are neither a nob nor a swell you may hover about and hope sadly that the time may come when you shall take part in the delights. This depends on so many qualities that no mere paper could hold half the catalogue.—[Evening Telegram.

THE FUTURE OF CONANICUT.

The island of Conanicut is in process of gradual transformation. It can never go back to its former condition. The ten years last past have wrought such a change that no human power can reverse the present order of things. In its former condition it was quiet, beautiful and lovely in its close alliance with nature, without the embellishment of art. Its salubrious atmosphere, its balmy breezes, and matchless scenery made it a delightful place of residence, while the natural simplicity of the habits, manners and customs of its people were in striking contrast with those residing on the opposite island. The latter were in constant intercourse with the world by steam and electricity, but these only through the sailboat driven by the fickle winds. Now, the Continental steamboats touch twice a day at its northern boundary, while the Jamestown makes frequent and constant trips between the central portion of the island and Newport.

To say nothing of the general advantages arising from this fact we see special results in the advanced price of land. The whole section purchased by the Conanicut Land Company, known as Conanicut Park, and for which they paid one hundred dollars per acre, could have been bought a short time previous to their purchase for from ten to twenty dollars per acre. Some sales have been made recently near that plat, as we are informed, for one thousand dollars per acre.

At the Ferry Meadow, land is held at the rate of several thousand dollars per acre. About one-fourth of the land owned by the Dumpling Land Company has recently been sold to parties in Philadelphia, upon which in a short time residences are to be erected by the purchasers. Other sales are expected to follow until the "City of Brotherly Love" will be represented in an aesthetic and exceptional colony on these far-famed mounds.

An artist's house is already builded on one of the most beautiful sites on this plat. It is to be occupied by his family this season. Some twenty-five workmen are employed in putting on the finishing strokes and getting the grounds in order. Mr. Richards has selected this charming location with true artistic taste, and all future visions of natural scenery possible in this locality will justify his choice. It sweeps the entrance to Long Island Sound, Block Island, Long Island, Narragansett Pier, Newport, and Narragansett bay with its islands.

The Friends' Meeting House, which has been allowed to run to decay, is about to undergo repairs. It occupies a delightful position about one mile from the Ferry, and it will be a happy day for the few members of that society now residing there when their house is renewed and regular services are held.

One new cottage has been erected near the Baptist Church; and as all cottages are now rented, it is to be presumed that for another season's demands others will be added.

For a quiet, healthy shore resort, free from the slavery of fashion and yet within thirty minutes ride of the finest and most wealthy fashionable summer residences and avenues in the world, this island has no equal.

But what will be the result of this progressive transformation? If the plans now developing shall put fifty villas on the Dumplings in ten years, the year 1900 will show one of the prettiest and healthiest colonies of summer residences in the country on that now partially barren and unseemly tract.

Will this new life coming to the island be equally advantageous to the lands and morals of the people?—[Beta, Correspondent of the Providence Journal.

BARE PLACES IN LAWNS.

By "lawn" we mean any piece of grass that is kept solely for ornamental purposes. It may be merely a front yard, or on large places it may include many acres: these may from some cause show thin and poor places here and there. These may be mended by several methods. If the bare places are large the surface may be worked over with a sharp rake to take out dead stems and roots, and then, after fertilizing, be sown with grass seed of a kind similar to the rest of the lawn. If the bare patches are small the quickest way to mend them is to lay turf. In England a method is in use not only for restoring bare places in established lawns, but also for starting new ones, called "inoculating." The ground being well prepared, bits of good turf (sods) about three inches square are inserted a foot apart each way. These will take root and spread, soon covering the whole surface. In making or mending a lawn, recollect that the work is to last for years, and that a good supply of fertilizing material will be a good investment.—[American Agriculturist.

During the last five years the New York Herald has called to Europe warnings of such storms as were deemed likely from the indications to cross the Atlantic, with results as to accuracy in the prophecies which a few years ago would have been deemed absolutely incredible. In the time above specified, 287 warnings have been thus sent to London, and thence were distributed to all the principal ports of Europe. Of these warnings, 209 were followed within twenty-four hours of the time indicated for the European coast by all the storm conditions forecast, 56 were correct in many particulars, while only 22 might be considered as failures. This record can fairly be considered as one of the triumphs of modern science.

The bold announcement is made that the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in the city of New York alone "threatens to extinguish the dairy industry of the Empire state."

Providence is happy now. An English visitor has recently said "that of all the cities of the world, save Vienna, the women met on the streets of Providence were the most charming in their person, dress and manners."

The Boston Herald says that "McKenney, the Braintree murderer, does not expect to live out his sentence." McKenney's sentence is for life.

Some additional experiments have been made in London to test the value of the new method of preserving carcasses by the injection of boracic acid. At a dinner where mutton had been preserved in this way for forty days boiled and roast joints were served: the meat retained its natural juiciness and flavor, and was free from any taint or taste of the antiseptic chemical which had been used. Five or six ounces of the boracic acid seem to be sufficient to preserve the carcass of a sheep of eighty or ninety pounds. The antiseptic is used by injecting it into a vein while the animal, though stunned by a blow on the head, is still alive, and the action of the heart is relied upon to pump it through every part of the body into which the arterial system ramifies.

Parnell Ready to Retire to Private Life.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, May 24.—A London special despatch says that on account of the split in the party brought about by Parnell's agreement with Gladstone, the former proposes to retire to private life. The aggressive members of Parnell's party repudiate his position.

Shotover wins the Derby.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

LONDON, May 24.—In the Derby race this morning, Duke of Westminster's Shotover was first, Lord Bradford's Quickline second, and Lorillard's Sachem third.

A CASE OF TRUE BENEVOLENCE.

Not to dwell upon the Burr case with its unpleasant features and the possible defeat of the excellent intentions shown by the dead, we shall best illustrate our point by turning to the unostentatious deeds of another New York woman of wealth. The public journal may properly sometimes pass that barrier which surrounds the acts of those who serve their generation with scriptural reserve, in obedience to that larger public duty which makes the result accomplished profitable for an example. The instructive feature of the benefactions bestowed by Miss Catharine Wolfe is not merely their amount, though that has probably reached $2,000,000 in ten years, but their comprehensive range and judicious designation. Money may be so distributed as to do more harm than good: it may be administered in a narrow and denominational spirit (of which there are eminent examples in America), or again in humanitarian or exclusively secular channels. It is an example to rich people when one of their number gives away money in such a way as to insure permanency of institutions which meet enduring wants, both of body and mind, and in such a large and liberal spirit as recognizes the needs of the New York newsboy on the one hand, and the daughters of pioneers growing up upon the western frontier on the other. The stewardship of wealth is a difficult and perplexing task; and, neither to be hardened by its possession, nor foolish in its distribution, is something for which, in the case of every rich man and woman, the community may well be grateful.

Miss Wolfe inherited her fortune on the death of her father 10 years ago. Her first considerable benefaction, a gift of $30,000, was to the home for incurables near New York. Soon after followed the gift of a similar amount to a school for girls in Colorado. These have been followed by the gift of $30,000 to St. Johnland, an enterprise in the interests of Christian socialism founded by the late Dr. Muhlenburg on Long Island; of $50,000 to Union College, to provide especially for the education of young men from the South; of $50,000 to the children's aid society of New York, for the erection of a newsboys' lodging house: and lately of $40,000 for the erection of a building in connection with Grace church, of which she is a member, mainly devoted to club-rooms for young men and young women, where clerks, art students, teachers, and others living in lodgings may find the best current literature, music, bright, cheerful, and elegant club-rooms, bath-rooms, writing-rooms, etc., for the use of members, whose dues (25 cents a month or $2.50 a year) are so small as to be a burden to no one, and yet preserve the feeling of self-respect which rebels at using a dole; and where, though the club-house adjoins a church, no religious tests are exacted nor, indeed, any questions as to one's belief or denomination asked.

These gifts of Miss Wolfe are mentioned merely as typical. Besides them there have been large gifts to the Metropolitan museum of art in New York, to the church of which she is a member and to the particular parish to which she belongs, whose church edifice has been enriched by costly additions, illustrating her intelligent taste in matters of ecclesiastical adornment. Grace Church has the only specimens of Venetian mosaic at all noteworthy in America, and in other respects shows that Miss Wolfe recognizes that art has an office in connection with Christian worship as well as with the homes and pleasures of the wealthy.—[Springfield Republican.

LONDON OUT OF THE SEASON.

The reproach that London out of the season was the dullest capital in the world is, indeed, ceasing to apply. London in November and December and January and February shows that it is determined to amuse its residuary millions, and that it is learning the way. There are concerts and picture exhibitions, there are operas and even flower shows. To judge by the gaieties of a London autumn and winter it might be supposed that the warning had been taken to heart against the massing of innumerable pleasures within a space of time not long enough to contain the half, and that the purveyors of diversion for the town had consented to open the flood-gates. A glance at the entertainments provided for May, and of which April itself had a foretaste, will clear away any doubts on the point. 'London out of the season approximates to what London in the season used to be, because the London season has doubled and trebled its turmoil of festivities. A simple ordinance appears to have been promulgated to multiply the quantity of every species of recreation. For every art gallery the metropolis once had between May and August, it now has four or five. There is so much music that the only wonder is the notes of rival performers do not jar with one another from adjoining streets. New theatres rise on every side. Playwriters and adapters are put to the strangest shifts to supply a dozen stages with the same plots and passions under different names. They who cater for the public rack their brains for novel sensations. The public co-operates by turning every passing event, from a royal marriage to high treason, from the funeral of a philosopher to the last moments of a criminal, into a sensation for itself. The town has awoke from its ancient autumnal stagnation into a state of reasonable enjoyment only to grow positively riotous in May and June and July. The truth is that a London season formerly was the affair of thousands and is now the affair of hundreds of thousands or of millions, just as the ordinary population, which was once content to be dull out of the season, insists upon having its monotony diversified at that period, so it insists upon participating in the season as though the season belonged to it as well as to that which accounts itself society. The pleasure board which was laid for a few has had to be lengthened and spread for the many. A consequence is a concourse and competition of occupation for eyes and ears and brains which would suggest to a visitor returning to London after an interval of thirty years that the British metropolis had somehow or other been mixed up with Paris and Vienna and New York.—[London Times.

A CURIOUS BELL.

At W. T. Garratt's bell foundry in San Francisco is a curiosity in the shape of an antique Russian bell. It was made in St. Petersburg, is three centuries old, weighs 1000 pounds, and is composed of tin, copper and a small percentage of silver. The bell was brought from Alaska to be recast, as it is cracked from top to centre by old age. The carvings around the bell are of a workmanship peculiarly Russian, and a representation of the Greek patriarch at Constantinople is wonderfully well done.

It is possible to ascertain in this country the exact cost of any European tour. The precise cost of travel from point to point, the number of hours it will take to get over a certain distance, are essential things to know before starting. Mr. T. Edward Bond, 260 Washington street, Boston, who is the American representative of the Messrs. Gaze, in London, will sketch out an itinerary for any tour in the world, and even sell round trip tickets for it in America. This enables one to calculate to a dollar the expense of a contemplated foreign trip. These books of tickets are easily exchanged if the traveller decides, after purchasing, upon a different route and their convenience is great where one travels without a courier in strange countries.

The New York Associated Press has issued orders to its agents to send all matter by the Mutual Union lines, instead of by the Western Union as heretofore. The difficulty arose out of the fact that the New York Associated Press has been in the habit of sending many of its specials over the new company's lines. Last week they were notified by the Western Union Company that they must discontinue patronizing the Mutual Union or the Western Union would charge them full commercial rates on all messages. The New York Associated Press has therefore transferred all its business to the younger company.—[Boston Journal.

St. Petersburg, says a writer in the London Times, is not one of nature's cities, but the creation of one master mind. Meant by Peter the Great for a trading-place, and not admirably adapted even for this, it has been turned by wrong-headed successors into the centre and seat of government. "The cry, 'Back to Moscow!' resounds now in not loud but deep notes wherever I go. Take away the court and the 60,000 men of the garrison, and the whole host of the official world, and the town would soon be a desert."

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, May 24.—The market opened lower ¼ to ⅜ and fairly active with a general decline. At 11 o'clock there was a slight improvement.

THE GENUINE RHODE ISLAND TURKEY.

A writer in the New York Tribune has something to say about drawn and undrawn poultry, and claims to be an expert in that question, and he says:—Do you know why? Simply because I was born and bred in Rhode Island, in which little state, for all the world, is alone to be found a corn-fed, dry dressed, early-drawn Rhode Island turkey, which from time immemorial has commanded an extra price in the Boston markets and everywhere else in the Western Hemisphere where people have a palate in their mouths capable of discriminating between a buzzard and a woodcock. And why is this? I hear your readers ask. Listen and I will tell them. A true Rhode Island turkey, after having had a free range in the fields during the summer months among the grasshoppers, is fed daily on as much hard Rhode Island corn (none of your Western trash) saturated with native oil, excelling in richness and flavor the best olive, until he becomes so fat that he waddles like an alderman in his walk. When some eight months old, say a day or two before Thanksgiving or Christmas, as the case may be, the turkey is shut up in a coop for some twenty-four hours and kept without food, that his crop and gizzard may be thoroughly emptied. The bird of Jove (for such he was styled until displaced by the Yankee spread eagle) is then gently seized by both legs, by which after they have been tied together he is tenderly suspended by a strong cord attached to a spike driven into an overhead floor joist of the farmer's barn. One artist then grabs a wing of the sacred bird in each hand and holds them firmly; and a second seizes his head reverentially in his left hand whilst with his right he proceeds with all the speed a due respect will permit to sever the jugular vein in his throat. After which, both adepts in the semi-divine art of poultry dressing remain quiet until the noble bird ceases to flutter, when his feathers are plucked with lightning speed that puts to shame the flight of time. Whilst yet warm the carcass is next relieved of its empty crop and intestines; the liver, heart, and gizzard (after the latter has been cleansed and stripped of its inside casing) being returned to the empty body of this glorious bird. Next, and last, the two oil bags that lie on either side of the extremity of the bird's backbone, called the "pope's nose" because of its super-exquisite flavor, are carefully and considerately removed, when a small cord is passed around the body and wings to keep them in proper shape, and the dear creature is hung up by the legs in a cool place, where it should remain not over five days before it is prepared for the table.

But how prepared? There comes the rub! The preparing and roasting of a Rhode Island turkey in this our day of iron stoves, coal ranges, and French and Irish cooks, must be set down as a lost art. I, the writer, am one of the few now living who remember when it was known and practiced in perfection, especially in my grandfather's kitchen by Aunty Phillis, the colored cook, who towered three as high above all the cooks of modern days as Hyperion does above a satyr. To begin:—my grandfather's kitchen fire-place was eight feet between the jambs and four feet deep. When Phillis had a turkey to roast she always made Scip and Sambo roll in a white oak log, six feet by three, and put it well back in the fire-place. A walnut fore-stick was then placed on the two great iron dogs, seven feet by two, and well filled in with smaller wood. When the back-log and fore-stick were about one-third burned into coals, Phillis spitted her well-prepared turkey and placed it on two of the several pairs of hooks that were on the front of the andirons, a pan being placed beneath to catch the drippings, and a pewter platter back of it as big round as the hind wheel of a Concord six horse coach, to reflect the heat. Abe, the colored turnspit boy, was next set to his work, seated on a stool, his sole business being to keep the spit constantly turning slowly and regularly. Cæsar, an old superannuated "nig," always sat on the hither end of the back-log with a hoe-handle in his hand, whilst "Pomp" was perched on the further end with a long rake's tail in his; it being the special duty of the one to give Abe a punch under the ribs with the hoe handle when he turned the spit too slowly, and that of the other to poke him in the midriff with his rake's tail as often as he turned it too fast, Phillis herself, meanwhile occasionally fetching Abe a swipe over the eyes with her dish-cloth as a sort of general reminder. Phillis took special care that the turkey never made more than two revolutions on the spit without its being thoroughly basted, first with the divinely-savored mixture of good things she had prepared, and later with the rich drippings that fell in the pan beneath. What the inside seasoning or stuffing consisted of, I never learned, and only remember that such was the exquisite flavor of the whole that it always attracted to its close proximity all of the dogs and cats that were domiciled on the premises, the first named consisting of two big and three little dogs which all reposed in a semi-circle as near the roasting turkey as Phillis would permit them to come, whilst our fifteen household cats varied with every color of the rainbow, occupied a half moon position just outside the dogs. The latter never for a moment ceased to lick their chops with delight whilst the grimalkins on their part ever kept up a constant musical purring, mingled with hundreds of sniffs more expressive of joyous anticipations than words can describe.

A turkey thus fatted on hard, sound, oily Rhode Island maize, dry-dressed as I have described, and roasted by Phillis before a hardwood roaring fire, resembled little a bird of like feather, fatted on musty Western cornmeal, barley, oats, potatoes and swill, stuffed to repletion with garbage, sand, and every vile thing that will add to its weight just before being killed, then soused into a kettle of boiling water and par-boiled, to save a little time in picking, left undrawn for a fortnight before being cooked, and lastly baked in an iron stove or before a vile-smelling coal and brimstone fire with seldom a turn on the spit, so that instead of the juices passing constantly and freely through the roasting bird, they all become congregated in the lower portion, leaving the remainder as dry and tasteless as a seasoned chip of wood, except what flavor has been imparted to it by the insufferable odor of the half-digested garbage in which it has been left to swelter for a week or month before it appears on the table—to compare the two things together, I say, is beyond my imagination, so divergent are they in every respect. The one represents the finest game bird on earth: the other the vilest thing that was ever eaten by man.

I don't remember the exact date of a visit paid my grandfather by an ex-mayor of New York, but he chanced to arrive just as the family were sitting down to a roasted-turkey dinner. The luggage of the newly-arrived guest had been sent to his room. In the evening Sambo chanced to see the guest leave the front door of the house with a good sized box under his arm, which he stealthily conveyed to a thicket not far away and concealed with care amidst the thick growing brushwood. Early next morning Sambo had the curiosity to open the box, which he found filled with ortolans, woodcock, and canvassbacks, which the ex-mayor had fondly expected to surprise his host with, but was ashamed to present after having dined on a corn-fed, dry-dressed, Rhode Island turkey, cooked after the fashion that was in vogue when the writer of this was a boy. And what holds good with the turkey holds equally good with poultry of all kinds. SHEPHERD TOM,

SUNDRIES.

Burglars may be kept out of my house by leaving the valuables out at night on the front door steps.

There is an editor of an eastern paper who has so much ego, that his manuscript is disfigured with big eyes.—[San Francisco Paper.

"You have played the dence with my heart," said a gentleman to his lady partner during a game of whist. "Well," replied the lady, with an arch smile, "it was simply because you played the knave."

"I never pretend to know a thing that I do not," remarked Brown. "When I don't know a thing I say at once, 'I don't know.'" "A very proper course," said Fogg; "but how monotonous your conversation must be!"—[Boston Transcript.

Some families find it more convenient to move than to sweep and scrub the premises they are in.—[New Orleans Picayune. What an exhibition of ignorance is here! Everybody knows that before moving from a house the mistress has it cleaned from garret to cellar, and upon moving into one, she inevitably exclaims, "The dirtiest house I ever saw! It's perfectly disgraceful!"—[Boston Transcript.

The well-known Henry Erskine once met an acquaintance, a barrister, who dealt in hard words and circumlocutious sentences. Perceiving that his ankles were tied up with a silk handkerchief, Erskine asked the cause. "Why, my dear sir," answered the wordy lawyer, "I was taking a romantic ramble in my brother's grounds, when coming to a gate, I had to climb over it, by which I came in contact with the first bar, and have grazed the epidermis of the skin, the accident being attended with a slight extravasation of blood." "You may thank your lucky stars," replied Erskine, that your brother's 'gate' was not so lofty as your 'style,' or you must have broken your neck."

INCIDENTS OF THE ROYAL WEDDING.

The gleaners of gossip about the late royal English wedding still find plenty to talk about and not a little to laugh over. The charge of the wedding ring was entrusted to the Prince of Wales, but he became so absorbed in the impressive ceremony that he forgot all about it, and Leopold had to turn round and ask for it. When it was produced it was discovered by the nervous little bridegroom that it was too small for the bride's finger, and he had to seize her by the wrist and absolutely force the ring to its place—a rather significant occurrence under the circumstances. Leopold was very much flustrated and Helena repeated her portion of the service with a marked German accent in her English. Her father is not so princely in his wealth as he is in pedigree and respectability, and her dower, like that of her three other married sisters, is precisely $1,200 a year. The violets with which the bridesmaids' dresses were looped up almost threw the superstitious British dowagers into spasms, as the violet, except among the Bonapartes, is regarded more as a mournful than as a festive flower, and immediately bad luck was predicted. The "I-told-you-so" brigade had their innings in less than three days, for on the Sunday morning following the wedding the death was announced of the bride's elder sister, Princess Marie, wife of Prince William of Wurtemburg, and the only one of Helena's immediate family who was not present at the wedding. She was confined on the day of the wedding, and neither mother nor child survived. Had she lived it is possible she might have been a queen, as Prince William is the heir of the childless King Charles of Wurtemburg. The next youngest sister is Queen Emma of Holland, and Helena is near enough the English throne to make her alliances very flattering one, and the success of papa and mamma Waldeck with their daughters proves that good health, good dispositions and good "bringing up" count as much in a girl's favor among the royal houses of Europe as they do among the plainest Republicans, money in no sense entering into the question, for all the daughters alike had but their little $1,200 a year.—[Philadelphia Press.

Cuticura

THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER

Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man 40 years old; had suffered 15 years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of 12 different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by
F. H. BROWN, Esq., Darnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.—Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly drinking away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.—Sixteen months' mean eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.

LEE, M. PHILLEY, 61 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.—The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent $1.00 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

SIX POINTS.

ALL WORTH REMEMBERING.

CUT THEM OUT.

People take nauseating doses for every pain and ache, which puts their stomachs out of order, and then a physician is called in afterward to them. This is all needless, for if the Hop Plaster is used, it is absorbed into the system in just the way to cure without bringing on other troubles.

A medicine to be popular must be both agreeable and efficacious, the Hop Plaster is a rare union of vegetable agents combined with safety, reliability and effectiveness. The indiscriminate use of medicines taken internally is far more productive of injury than benefit.

The most powerful medicated and effective plaster ever invented is the Hop Plaster; it embodies all the medicated and sedative properties of the Hop in combination with the most highly approved gums and balsams known to modern pharmacy.

The Hop Plaster is made porous, thus allowing free evaporation of moisture, stimulating the innumerable pores of the body to a healthy action and giving tone and vigor to the whole system. It is a discovery of a Yankee chemist.

The medicinal virtues of the Hop have been utilized for centuries. They are all concentrated in the Hop Plaster, and do more real good in relieving pain than any root, drug or herb liquid medicine in the whole domain of nature.

Hop Plasters are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada, 25c. each or 5 for $1, and are guaranteed to be the best in the markets. Avoid cheap, worthless goods.
